EAST BETHEL FARM BUILDINGS IN FIRE

Main House of George Haines, Stock and House Furnishings, Saved Saturday Morning

The Bethel fire department was called about 6.30 Saturday morning to fight a fire which threatened to destroy the farm buildings of George Haines, formerly the James Swan place, at East Bethel. Within three minutes the pumper and a skeleton crew of seven men including foremen were on their way. On their arrival the fire was well into the ell of the house, having destroyed a large barn, stable and shed, but after a fight of over an hour the blaze was under control in a blind attic of the main house. When discovered the fire was coming through the roof of the barn. All the stock was saved and the furniture removed from the house, but some 60 tons of hay in the barn and all farming tools, stored in the basement were lost. The loss has been estimated at $5,000, which was partially covered by insurance.

CITIZEN'S DICTIONARY OFFER POPULAR

Attractive Book Free to Citizen Subscribers for a Short Time—Necessity for Home or School

Through an arrangement with a large publishing company the Citizen is enabled to offer a copy of the New Universities Webster Dictionary absolutely free to its readers. We believe that this is one of the most valuable premiums ever offered by a weekly newspaper and the offer is in line with the policy of the Citizen of giving its readers the utmost in value instead of carrying on the familiar high-pressure subscription contest.

This dictionary is self-pronouncing, with a tremendous vocabulary of more than 40,000 words concisely and accurately defined and pronounced. This is supplemented by several valuable special features, including dictionaries of Synonyms and Antonyms, Commerce and Law, Foreign Words and Phrases.

This offer comes at an especially opportune time as schools will be opening in a very few weeks and in connection with school work a good dependable dictionary should be in every home. It is equally desirable for the use of teachers, business men, writers, and for parents who wish to teach their children the correct use of our language. It is a convenience and necessity for all who speak, read and write English.

The book is strongly bound in black artificial leather, semi-flexible, gilt stamped, round corners, red edges, with headbands and a four color frontispiece. It is over two inches in thickness and consists of more than 900 pages. It is packed in an attractive carton.

This premium has been advertised in the Citizen the past two weeks and has been met with a greater response than was expected. A shipment of the dictionaries is expected to arrive this week, several of which are awaited by our subscribers. Orders received by mail will be filled from our stock or sent direct from the publisher, depending on the number of books we have on hand when the order is received.

These books are absolutely free. Just pay $2.00, the regular yearly subscription price, and the dictionary is yours. If more than one copy is desired, it is only necessary to pay the same amount for a gift subscription or for the extension of your own subscription for each copy wanted.

This offer is good for a short time only. The last day is Friday, Sept. 15.

The Law of Lek
The Law of Lek is a strange joke that governs the blood feuds of the mountaineers of Albania. Respecting it, says Collier's Weekly, one never shoots his enemy when the man has arranged for a period of truce so he can go to town, hold a party or gather his harvest.
These feuds, therefore, may be "turned on or off" at will so they will not interfere with one's business or pleasure.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

LABOR DAY

Shoot holiday fun "on the wing."
Don't let subjects pose—and you will get gay, lively snapshots.

LABOR DAY weekend is the last big outdoor holiday of summer.
For most of us, it means a trip, a week-end camp, or other special jaunt—and plenty of pictures, to remind us of summer fun during the coming winter months.

Is your camera ready? And have you made your Labor Day plans with a view to picture chances? That's always a good idea when you're planning an excursion—keep the camera in mind, and select a tour route, or holiday spot, that you know is full of picture opportunities.

The more fun and activity you can pack into the week-end, the more snapshot chances you'll have. Where-ever something is going on, your camera should be ready for action.

A roasting-ear picnic, an amusement-park tour, a fishing trip, a mountain hike—all these are chuck-full of picture material if you just keep your eyes open and your camera ready.

On a picnic, picture your crowd settling the table and eating—don't wait until they get through. At the pool, or the beach, picture them swimming and diving, or enjoying some other beach sport—not posed on shore.

Watch your exposures, and keep them "in step" with the prevailing light. Along shady streams, there is very little light, so you must use a large lens opening and a slow shutter speed. But on the beach, or when fishing offshore, light is bright and intense—and exposures of 1/50 second at f.11, f.16, and sometimes even f.22 are correct.

When in doubt about exposure, err on the "full" side. Correct exposure is best, but an overexposed film will usually yield a better print than an underexposed film. Good modern films, especially the "chrome" type, have enough latitude to take care of reasonable errors in judging ex-posure.

So, here's luck. It looks like a great week-end, and I hope you keep your camera as busy as mine will be.

An Electric Vacuum Cleaner Is a Year-Round Necessity

Vacuum cleaning rugs once a week adds to their life and appearance.

By IRA MILLER
Rural Electrification Bureau

WINTER, fall, spring or summer, the problem of tracked-in sand and grit on the rugs and carpets always is with the housewife, especially on the farm. For, no matter how much care they exercise in cleaning their shoes, the various members of the family carry in a surprisingly large amount of dirt in a surprisingly short time. And, apart from the dull and dingy appearance it gives to the rugs and carpets, this dirt greatly shortens their life by cutting the nap and thus causing worn spots to appear.

Although most of the surface dirt can be removed with a broom or carpet sweeper, the sharp particles of sand and grit—which become embedded at the roots of the nap and, therefore, do the most damage—are not so dislodged. That only can be done, as in the old-fashioned way, by hanging it on a clothesline or laying it on the grass and beating it with a bamboo or steel beater. Or, as in the modern electrified home, by using a vacuum cleaner which produces only minor wear in comparison with that of normal use.

Those who contemplate buying a vacuum cleaner for the first time, or who are thinking of replacing their old machine with a more modern and efficient one, should not be guided by price alone. For, in general, initial cost is no indication of the efficiency and durability of the machine. In fact, the length of time necessary for efficient cleaning probably is a better buying criterion.

To obtain the best results with any machine, certain precautions must be observed: The cleaner should be operated at a speed of 1.00 to 1.25 feet per second; the nozzle should be adjusted to give good vibration of the rug; and the bag should be emptied after each use of the machine, and thoroughly brushed (inside as well as
out) at least once or twice a month.
The latter is most important to effective cleaning.

The price of the average vacuum cleaner ranges from $30 to $50, with de luxe models selling up to $80. Even the most expensive vacuum cleaners, if used fifty times a year and assuming a life of but ten years, will cost only about 24 cents a week—two cents for electricity and the balance for the machine (depreciation, interest and repairs). On the same basis, an average-priced machine will cost approximately 12 cents per week.

Betty's Butter and Egg Man

By MAY EVANS

(Associated Newspapers.)

WNU Service.

IN SPITE of the fact she had more freckles than any other girl in Richland county, Betty Moore possessed a romantic soul. She day-dreamed as she went up the lane to call the cows, and she day-dreamed every time she walked down the peony-bordered path to the rural delivery post box beside the dusty road.

When Mr. Moore finally installed a radio in the kitchen-dining-sitting room of the old farmhouse, Betty day-dreamed as she listened to the music and cooked for the household.

Kate Moore, Betty's sister, was as pretty as Betty was plain. However, Kate, like Betty, was a dreamer, though Kate did precious little work as she dreamed.

Most of all, Kate dreamed when she went to the village in the rattling family flyver. She dreamed that the through train had broken down, and some great movie magnate who had been forced to stop in Richland Junction would see her passing, and being instantly attracted to her type, beg her to accept a fabulous salary.

Dreams, as every one knows, do come true—sometimes, and on the day that Mr. Moore discovered the barn mice had gnawed right through the heart of his last big roll of binder twine, and Betty volunteered to drive to town for a new supply, the dream distributor made one of his mistakes. He sent a famous movie director sauntering along Main street while his private car stood on the Richland Junction siding, waiting for a special train to pass.

Betty, coming out of the Junction's general store, her arms piled high with packages, binder twine, fresh bananas, raisins, powdered sugar, birdseed and bacon, collided with the smartly dressed, tired-eyed stranger.

"I'm sorry," apologized the man, as he stooped and picked up the sack of powdered sugar, which had split open when it struck the sidewalk. "I'll get you another."

"Don't bother," replied Betty. "I've got to hurry home with this binder twine. Dad is waiting for it."

"Sometimes there's money in not being so much in a hurry," said the stranger.

Betty's face flushed beneath the freckles.

"As a matter of fact," continued the man, "you are just the type I want to work into a few local-color rural scenes I'm planning to shoot upstate. Those freckles of yours ought to register like a housewife. How about $500 for a week's trip?"

Suddenly Kate Moore went about the tasks which usually the patient Betty performed. "It just doesn't seem fair for me to be slaving away in this hot kitchen while Betty stays away getting $500 a week for five weeks for doing nothing."

"A thousand dollars is a nice piece of money," remarked Mr. Moore. "Betty told me she wanted the money to help fix up the old house on Tom's farm."

"Humph," sniffed Kate. "Let her get a taste of life with a movie outfit, and see how quick she forgets Tom."

Just two weeks from the day Betty Moore left Richland Junction, a tall, tanned young man in faded khaki paced up and down the station platform, a look of anxiety on his face. Betty was young—would her head be turned by the small fortune she had earned with her freckles?

"Well, of all the simpletons!" greeted Kate, as Betty entered the door of the Moore farmhouse, the tall, tanned Tom at her heels. "Here you got a real chance in the movies with one of the most important directors in the country and you haven't sense enough to make him take you on to Hollywood and give you a real job!"

"Mr. De Lann told me he thought I was the smartest girl he had ever known when I said I was going to take my thousand dollars and go straight home," cheerfully replied Betty.

"I'd like to know why," exclaimed Kate in astonishment. "Likely as not you would have caught on out west and landed some big butter-and-egg man instead of having to settle down in the sticks with Tom."

Tom grinned cheerfully as Betty smiled up in his face and said, "I should worry about catching on out west when I'm so popular at home. I'm going to buy a rose pink sink and rose pink mixing-bowls and rose pink glass dishes and rose pink tablecloths, and have an electric motor to pump water into the house. And Tom is going to build me some lots bigger hen-houses so I can have bigger flocks, and he is going to stop shipping cream to the city, and let me churn it instead, and I'm to have every penny of the butter and egg money."

A kindly smile puckering the corners of his mouth and making little crinkly wrinkles about his eyes, Mr. Moore said, "Looks as though Betty had landed a pretty good butter-and-egg man right here in Richland Junction."

TRUTH about ADVERTISING

By CHARLES B. ROTH

ADVERTISING'S NO MYSTERY

SOME of us remember well when John Slattery started in business. He couldn't have been over 25 and he had only a few hundred dollars in capital. But he did have a wife and two fine boys. He wanted to make them comfortable. He quit his job, went in on his own.

At first he would come to us and in his frank, likable way ask if we would buy from him. We liked John. It flattered us to have him invite us to become his customers. We began trading with him.

He treated us so considerately and so honestly; he gave us such good service; he was so grateful for our patronage, that we enjoyed being his customers. It made us feel good. Others felt the same way. His business grew.

Then he began asking more people to trade with him than he could reach in person. He had to run small advertisements in the newspaper, which he wrote himself after store hours.

As he grew larger he ran larger advertisements, and where in the beginning he had a handful of customers, now he had several hundred.

Charles Roth

He continued to advertise in the newspaper. His business continued to grow. He couldn't know all his customers by name now, of course, but they felt that they could buy from him with confidence because he had been recommended to them by another friend whom they had always trusted.

This other friend who recommended John Slattery was the newspaper which carried his advertising.

Whatever you read in the newspaper you naturally feel you can believe, because you know that a reputable newspaper will not accept advertising from any but honest and reliable concerns.

Because this young man starting in business made use of that aid he built his business. As his business grew he was able to give his customers better service and more for their money.

Although few of the persons reading his advertisements and becoming his customers realized it, they were all indebted to the newspaper for its service in bringing to their attention an opportunity of getting more for their money by publishing advertisements of this enterprising young man.

Advertising is serving us in this same way every day, by bringing information of where we can buy most advantageously, by helping us to find what we want at the lowest possible prices.

NATIONAL FOREST TO HAVE FAIR EXHIBIT

Oxford County Fair will again hold the enviable position as the leading fair in the State for Grange, Boy Scouts, 4-H Clubs and individual exhibits. With every available inch of space reserved in the Exhibition Hall by four Granges and a juvenile Grange, the Boy Scouts, and 4-H Clubs of Oxford County, as well as individual exhibitors of vegetables and farm products raised this season, dairy products, canned goods, fruits, needlework, quilts, rugs, paintings and novelty collections, assures this fact.

Charles W. Bowker, who is observing his 25th year as superintendent of the Exhibition Hall, has made a special effort to make the exhibition one that will be recorded as the best in the history of the fair. In arranging the space and displays Mr. Bowker has been assisted by Elmore C. Edmunds, who was appointed to the Board of Trustees this year.

These two men are reviving a custom that was popular at Oxford County Fair a number of years ago, and that is to have the Exhibition Hall open until 10:30 each evening of the fair. This will provide an opportunity to patrons, who are unable to attend the fair during the day time, to see the best that is grown and made in Oxford County.

Secretary Sidney F. Verrill has arranged for an educational exhibit that should prove of interest to every adult and child that attends the fair. One of the buildings near the Exhibition Hall has been set aside for the White Mountain National Forest exhibition. A modern fire fighting engine equipped with material for 50 men will be stationed outside of the building. Inside of the building will be Forest Rangers to explain the methods used by the Forest Service in its fire prevention, detection and suppression. Illustrations and maps will be used to give a graphic picture of the splendid work that is being done to preserve as nearly as possible the natural environment of the 887,377 acres that make up the White Mountain National Forest in Maine and New Hampshire.

OXFORD COUNTY
UNITED PARISH

THE PAST WEEK:

Sunday, James Martin of Yale Divinity School, as our guest preacher, conducted the service at North Waterford.

The Sunday evening sunset service was held on the Pike Farm overlooking Bear Pond. This service was held jointly with the churches of Bridgton. Rev. Hilda Ives was guest speaker and delivered a very inspiring message based upon her experiences at the Madras Conference.

Monday: This day saw the departure of Mr. Bull and eight of our young people for Camp Manitou in Washington, Maine. This conference is held to provide instruction, inspiration, and fellowship for young people. Those to go from the parish were George and Henry Fox of Lovell, Harriet Grover and Gertrude McKeen of Stoneham, Edith Pike and Norma Reihan of South Waterford, and Alice Morse and Bill Bull of Waterford Flat. These persons were chosen because of the interest they have shown in Young People's work and the promise they show as future leaders and workers.

The Waterford Men's Club held an open meeting at the Wilkins House and were privileged to hear Prof. Hromadka, of the University of Prague, speak on "Czechoslovakia under the Nazis."

Tuesday a circle supper was held at North Waterford.

THE COMING WEEK:

Sunday: In the absence of Mr. Bull and Mr. Bickett it is hoped that Mr. Martin will be able to help us again. The Waterford Service has been moved to 10:15 rather than 10:30 to enable the ministers to meet all service appointments.

There will be no Sunset Service this evening as the one of last Sunday was the final service of the summer.

Tuesday evening a young people's council meeting is planned to make plans for the year's program.

The Circle suppers in Stoneham have been cancelled until the first week in October. As is the custom the Ladies of Stoneham take the month of September for their Circle vacation.

Friday is the regular date for the Circle supper in Lovell.

Mr. Bickett and his family are now enjoying their vacation in New York. They are due to back with us again about the 20th of September.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere appreciation of the prompt and efficient work of the Bethel fire department and the timely assistance of our neighbors at the fire which nearly destroyed our home last Saturday morning.
